New Therapeutical Agents (Classic Reprint)

By Willard H. Morse

Forgotten Books. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 214 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.5in. Excerpt from New Therapeutical Agents There is no reason why a new work on Materia Medica and Therapeutics should be given the profession. Medical literature is unusually elaborate in its works on this branch of our science, and in the present state of medicine there is really nothing left to be desired. Stille, Bartholow, Ringer and Wood, have written well. Others than they have ably seconded and supplemented that which they have done. The task is complete. We understand the materia medica to-day better than we have ever done before. We are going on unto perfection in therapeutical knowledge. The future of the science is of the far distance. The present is the objective of the past. We have yet much to learn. Understanding the principles of the action of old-established medicines, there will come to us gradually new developments and discoveries. For these we must be content to work and wait. As Bartholow has remodelled the structure built by Stille, so in another decade Bartholow is to be remodelled to suit the times. Once in a generation may come revision, and that...

Reviews

It is one of my personal favorite books. It is written in easy terms and never hard to understand. It has been designed in an exceedingly easy way and it is only after I finished reading this publication by which in fact changed me, change the way I think.
