Excerpt from Sesame and Lilies: Second Lecture of Queens Gardens John ruskin was born in London, in 1819. His father was a prosperous wine-merchant, who spent his leisure hours in the study of art and the exercise of the pencil and brush. His early education was conducted by his mother, a woman of unusual culture, possessing a refined taste in literature. This maternal tuition was almost puritanic in its severity. In addition to daily reading from such books as Pope s Homer, Scott s Novels, and Pilgrim s Progress, he was forced, he tells us, by steady, patient, daily toil, to learn long chapters of the Bible by heart, as well as to read it every syllable through, aloud, hard names and all, from Genesis to the Apocalypse, about once every year; and to that discipline, patient, accurate, and re solute, I owe, not only a knowledge of the book I find occasion ally serviceable, but much of my general power of taking pains, and the best part of my taste in literature, By such discipline in the knowledge of the Scriptures she established my soul in life, he says, and he regards it as the most precious, and, on the whole, the one essential part of my education. From the training of his mother he passed to the school of the Rev. Thomas Dale, and thence to Christ Church, Oxford.
